Broco Rhino Security Door Puller

Designed by a SWAT breacher,
the Rhino works!
Spike, Twist, & Pull hard!
Security doors open quickly, safely, assertively.

Following three years of development and refinement in service with San Diego County Sheriff's Department SED, the Broco Rhino is the most effective one-man outward opening security screen door puller available today. Compared to prior art Rhino is lighter, takes up less space and is easier to use.

Whereas opening security doors used to be a two or even three man job (one man wielding the Halligan and another having to set it; or one man to punch and two more to pull) Rhino is deployed by just one breacher allowing the other to be on the ram for quicker response. And speed is safety!

Rhino's large point penetrates the screen and hooks behind a cross piece or the lock plate. Slide hammer action breaks doors, locks and jamba. Drop the Rhino and it props the door, keeping it from swinging back.

Rhino features all steel welded construction is 40" long, weighs 38 lbs. and is made in the U.S.A.

And like Broco's other entry products, Rhino is available for no obligation trial before you purchase. Contact Broco, Inc., Rancho Cucamonga, CA, 909 483 3222, Sales@Brocoinc.com
